The following lessons were created by Susan Dulaney Wright, a teacher participating in a 2010 National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Institute for Teachers entitled, "Exploring the Past: Archaeology in the Upper Mississippi River Valley."

Past People

Overview:

My project incorporates storytelling and photographs from the institute in an interactive website. I used VoiceThread to pose questions to third graders about the way people survived long ago. I focused on the uses of a deer for food, clothing, and tools. Questions were posted through narration and answers given either via voice or text.

I intend to use this project as an introduction to world cultures with third graders.
